

NYC session tech, Honey, talks to ALEX FOX about her nail loves and shares her recent exciting nail imagery

Introducing sassy Brooklyn session tech - HONEY

WHO - Honey

WHY - Funky NY session nail artist

WHERE - Brooklyn, (East Flatbush), New York, USA

WHAT - Nails, trends, styles, designs and ideas

What is your role in nails?

"I'm a nail artist with a lot of freelance work. I do session nails, celebrities, fashion shoots, pretty much a little of everything. I also work at a salon for my regular clients four nights a week."

How, when and why did you get into nails?

"I started with nails when I was just 15 years old. My mum bought me a full set of acrylic nails as a gift for graduating 8th grade. I had my nails done every two weeks after that and then taught myself. I used to wear my nails super long and was constantly practicing nail designs and art on myself, my friends and mum's."

Pretty soon, a friend asked me to work in her salon - I was still 15 years old. From there, I gained experience and never looked back."

How did you end up with celebrity clients?

"My first celebrity shoot was through a friend of a friend of a friend of my boss, who had a nail salon. My boss didn't actually do nails - she just owned the salon. Even though I was still very young, she felt I was the most experienced and knew the most about nails, so she sent me to the shoot. The shoot was celebrity everything! The photographer was Steven Klein, the model was Naomi Campbell, the clothing designer was DSquared -"
